

Our architecture diagram proposes two architecture styles blended together: client-server and MVC. Our clients shall interact with the 'View' components which will then send and receive information from the 'Controller' components. These 'back-end' controller components shall have the capability of interacting with the databases.